Editorial Review

About the Author

Dr. Melissa Caudle is an experienced reality show creator and producer who brings her expertise in the area of writing business plans for reality shows to you the reader. Dr. Mel has built a solid reputation as a reality show creator having started as a production coordinator in New Orleans, La on the reality show, "The Girls Next Door" featuring the three Playmates and Hugh Hefner. That was the beginning of transferring her knowledge from feature film production. She discovered quickly that although there were vast similarities there were also vast differences. Two huge differences were pitching a reality show and developing a business plan for one. Isolating the differences came by applying her experience as an adjunct professor, teacher and researcher. "I never knew that a Ph.D. in Statistical Analysis would prove beneficial in creating reality shows and business plans," she says. "But it did."
